National 9-1-1 Telecommunicator Week

The Kent County Dispatch Authority wishes to acknowledge the outstanding work performed by 9-1-1 telecommunicators nationwide and in particular those that work in the Grand Rapids and Kent County 9-1-1 centers.

These men and women are highly trained and motivated individuals who are the first to answer calls for help from the public. Their dedication to duty coupled with their professional demeanor and skill provide a safety net for both residents and visitors to Kent County.

Each year this annual week of appreciation for 9-1-1 telecommunicators gives the public an opportunity to recognize these unsung heroes, whose mission critical work often goes unnoticed but is a significant piece of the public safety network.

The Authority recognizes these individuals for their contribution to the safety of our citizens and commends them for a job well done.
